Song for Tomorrow

The throbbing violins no longer weep,
The thund'rous crash of drums is silent now;
The dreams the music wrought are ours to keep
And here tonight we make this solemn vow:

Music shall ever fill the hearts of men,
And they shall rise and sing, forever free.
Peace and love shall rule the earth again,—
And man with man shall live in harmony!

"And now tomorrow! . . but yesterday still lingers in our minds. We shall not soon forget our last year at Redford—hours packed full of fun, friends, patriotic drives—and some unavoidable study. Along with events of national significance—the death of President Roosevelt and V-E Day—we remember the exciting Redford-Cooley games, the corny jokes of Mr. Bones at the Minstrel Show, the anxiety we experienced before receiving our report cards, sitting in groups on the lawn after school discussing the many topics uppermost in a senior's life, the oratorical contest in which Cliff Mezey won the Stevens Cup, the walls almost completely covered with campaign banners, posters, and signs during the week before elections, our slight case of jitters as we faced the camera for our senior pics, and the rapidity and thoroughness (?) with which we were measured for our caps and gowns. We'll remember, too, the cruise, class day, counting ballots after senior election, the luncheon, the spring concert, the honors assembly, our senior Eton caps, the mixer, Ghost Wanted, and our impressive Prom.

These memories will live with us down through the years and will carry our thoughts wistfully back to dear old Redford. . . . And now tomorrow!

On a cold Sunday morning at the beginning of the term, the sponsor and editors of the yearbook visited the offices of Brophy-Salisbury, engravers, to get new ideas for the yearbook. At this meeting the costs of different engraving processes were discussed, and careful consideration was given to the problem of avoiding a rise in the price of the book.

It is interesting to note that it was on the trip home from Brophy's that the idea of senior hats was evolved. The result was the now familiar gray Eton cap with the jaunty red "45" on it.

DOUBLE SEXTETTE-QUARTET

Playing an important part in the music department this term has been the girls double sextet and the boys quartet. All the members of the quartet are graduating this June, as are several of the girls from the double sextet.

These organizations were featured in the Spring Concert. Also a highlight of the Concert was the finale, the words of which were written by Mr. C. H. Blanchard. A novel feature was the choral speaking with which Mr. Love, following the modern trend, concluded his original number, America, Land That We Love.

BOYS' GLEE CLUB

Greetings, Class of June 1945!

You are the biggest so far, 475. I might say the best, but fine as you are, you are following a long list of splendid classes—Redford doesn't graduate any other kind. Let me say you are the "last, best" class! Indeed you are grand in scholarship, activity, co-operation, and loyalty. Besides all this, you are such good friends. To me, at least, you just radiate friendliness—and fun also. You love good times, and have them, too, always in good taste.

Don't forget, your class has won more scholarships than any other class in the history of Redford High. This fact alone is indicative of your sterling worth. We are going to miss you a lot.

I hope you will keep this copy of the Outpost always. It will become one of your priceless possessions. When you turn its pages as your grandchildren sit on your laps, you will point out to them the many pictures that will remind you of those exciting though terribly anxious days of World War II when you all worked so hard and well in the paper drives, War Bond campaigns, and the dozen other activities to help win the war, and had grand times doing it. I am proud of and happy about you for what you did and for what you are. I hope that as you turn the pages of this Outpost and happen to catch sight of us, your teachers, and fond memories surge through your minds, you will exclaim, "We all had such happy times together, although they did make us work—sometimes."

Sincerely your friend,

WM. R. STOCKING

ANSWERS

An artist's life is not always palette and brush, easel and paint, but a variety of things—at least around Redford. If you chanced to enter the art room during a class period you might wonder if you hadn't interrupted the dress rehearsal of a three-ring circus. From one corner comes the sharp clink of a loom; here is a group of students critically appraising clay models ready for the kiln; those sprawled figures have not escaped from the gym, but are wrestling with the problem of painting a 53-foot sign in a 40-foot room; while the regular class is easily identified as all those pupils whose eyes dart from drawing-board to model and back again.

This semester, school and community projects have taken many forms: the making of favors (see opposite page) and place cards for the holiday trays of hospitalized men of the Armed Forces, together with original Christmas cards for their personal use; posters for the Disabled American Veterans, the American Legion, and the school's numberless patriotic drives; the furthering of intercultural relations, especially with China; to say nothing of housing and city planning.

In the pursuance of these activities, the pupils must not neglect their course of study. Although it's sometimes inconceivable, the art instructors manage to squeeze in basic painting, drawing, and handcrafts, besides directing the thousand and one services the versatile artists perform for the Outpost and the yearbook.

In answer to a question often asked of art instructors Mrs. Irene Parker says, "Our program provides for the art needs of the average student with no special skill as well as for those with definite talent. The art courses offer opportunities for the development of leisure time hobbies; for pleasant experience in the understanding of the many art needs of the school, home, and community; and for training in special skills."

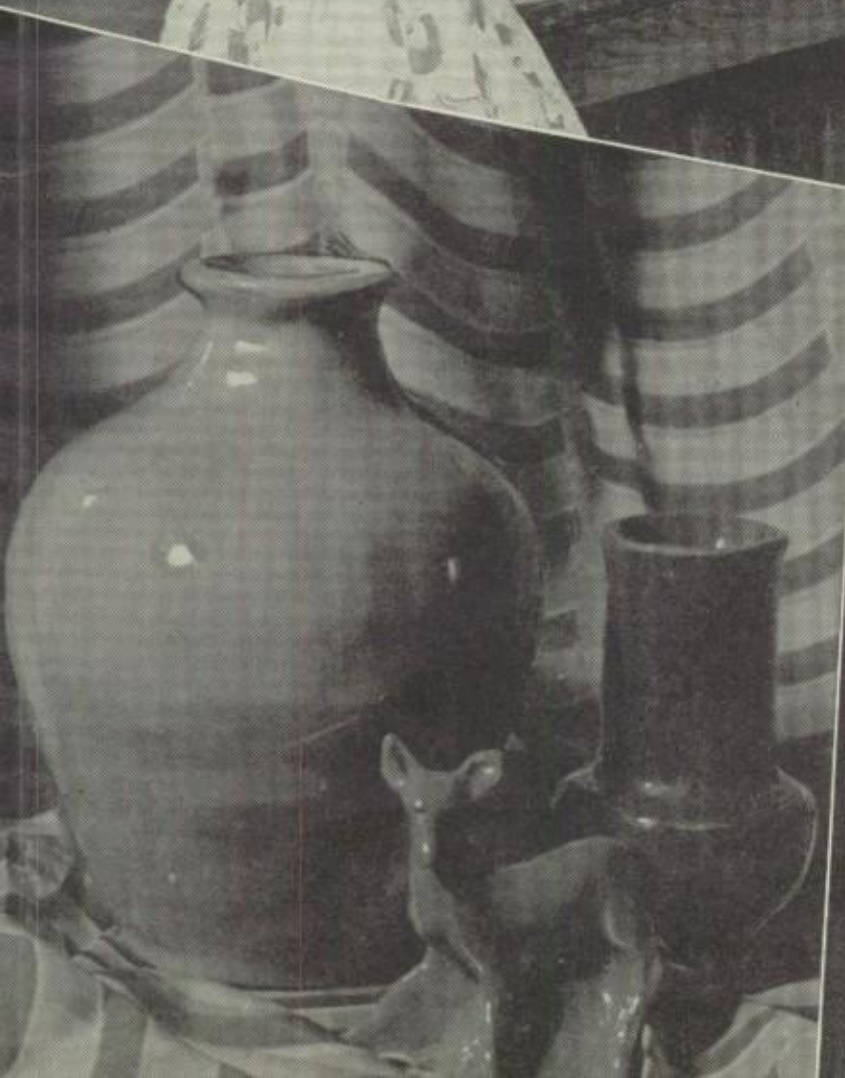

Another three-ring circus which flourishes, winter and summer, is the crafts center of the art department, located in the twilight basement of the old building. Here prize-winning modern jewelry is fashioned, and leather and metal goods are made.

There are even facilities for the repair of these articles! Work is done on rings, belts, buckles, ash trays, and even coffee pots, to mention only a few things. Sandals can be resoled, beads restrung, and safety catches replaced. Annual sales of hand-made objects of art provide money for equipment and materials.

"If you can keep your head when all about you are losing theirs" might well be the slogan of both instructors and pupils in this very active department.

BREAKFAST AND REQUIREMENTS

Students in the 11A, 12B, and 12A who have the requisite number of honor points are selected by a faculty committee to become members of the National Honor Society. To receive this recognition, a student must also show qualities of service, character, and leadership. It is estimated that the gold pin, insignia of the Society, is awarded to fewer than two per cent of Redford students.

At the annual breakfast the Society greeted its new members and elected officers. Peter Dietrich is the new president, Marilyn Strohm, vice-president, and Bruce Wyble, secretary. Miss Grover was again unanimously elected treasurer.

The indoor track squad won its four meets by one-sided scores this spring. John Wilcox was the pace-setter, collecting a total of 77 points. John took first in the 220, and Al Jackson came through in the pole vault for Redford's two firsts in the city finals. Redford finished fourth in the city. The baseball team, headed by "Lefty" Andrews was undefeated as the yearbook went to press, as were the tennis and golf teams. The girls' swimming team took three out of its five meets. Because of our first-class athletic field, the West League, semi-finals and finals, and Wayne Relays for track were held here.

Athletes who entered the Armed Forces before graduating were Bob Walls, John Wilcox, Navy; and Harper Cunningham, Army Air Corps.

Girls...

You'll enjoy working for the TELEPHONE COMPANY

Michigan Bell offers a variety of jobs to appeal to almost every graduating high school girl. Operators to send calls over the humming long distance lines . . . business office representatives to handle transactions with customers . . . clerks and typists . . . workers in modern telephone cafeterias . . . girls with mechanical leanings to serve as helpers in the equipment rooms.

Telephone work is pleasant. Working quarters are clean and quiet. Associates are the type you would want to know. Wages are good, with regular increases and vacations with pay. Splendid opportunities for advancement. Dining facilities in many buildings for everything from a soft drink to a dinner. And we may be able to place you in an office near your home.

The friendly girls in the employment office in the telephone building, 1365 Cass Avenue at State Street, one block north of Michigan Avenue, will gladly tell you all about these jobs. The office is open every day except Sunday.
